

Lotus Blossom Consulting Simplifies Surrogacy, Egg Donation, and Family-Building Options
Infertility Experts Guide Clients through Treatment with Compassion and Understanding

DALLAS, TX—Founded in 2005, Lotus Blossom Consulting, LLC is one of the most sought after, full-service international infertility consulting organizations in the country. With a focus on surrogacy and egg donation, Lotus Blossom Consulting has helped thousands of intended parents become families. In the last year alone, close to 100 babies were born, thanks to the work of founder Mindy Berkson and the Lotus Blossom Consulting team.

“Surrogacy and egg donation have so many moving parts,” says Berkson, whose company is celebrating its 10th anniversary this year. “With our proven track record, we educate our clients to be their own best advocates, helping them plan financially, physically, legally, and emotionally to maximize their journey to parenthood.”

Lotus Blossom Consulting offers conventional, LGBT (Lesbian Gay Bisexual and Transgender), and international surrogacy, always focusing on the personal needs and requirements of their clients. Berkson’s own struggles with infertility, her deep knowledge of the process, and her national network of doctors, lawyers and infertility clinics, allow her and her team to create a solid master plan for building a family through surrogacy.

“The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention offers startling statistics regarding infertility,” says Berkson. “For instance, one in six couples in their reproductive years struggles with infertility,” she adds. “In addition to our experience and expertise, we offer continuous support and encouragement during what is often an emotionally-loaded and exhausting process,” she adds. “We are with our clients every step of the way.”

“One of the first questions our clients ask is: ‘Can we afford this?’” continues Berkson, the firm’s lead fertility consultant. “Addressing the financial aspect of the process is the first step we take to help clients prepare for the treatment and ancillary costs associated with egg donation and/or surrogacy.”

Next, Lotus Blossom Consulting works with clients to select a team that may include a fertility center, a reproductive endocrinologist and an embryologist. “We are fortunate to have alliances all over the country with fertility centers, physicians and embryologists, all of which have above national average success rates for the treatments our clients are seeking,” says Berkson. “We follow that up by identifying an ideal egg donor, a surrogate, or both, if needed.”

Berkson takes great pride in sharing that Lotus Blossom Consulting’s average match time between the intended parents and a surrogate is two weeks, while other surrogacy firms have wait times of four to eight months.

Another critically important component in the surrogacy process is the legal terrain. Lotus Blossom Consulting works side by side with its clients so that they have a comprehensive understanding of the law. “Each state is different when it comes to surrogacy law,” explains Berkson. “We spend a lot of time with our clients to determine how their goals intersect with the laws, so there are no surprises or obstacles along the way.”

Additional considerations, which are often overlooked by others in the industry, include an analysis of health insurance policies and estate planning. “We consider our services to be comprehensive because we truly bring every possible issue to the table,” says Berkson. “We never allow our clients to enter into an egg donation or surrogacy situation without equipping them with the knowledge and resources to proceed successfully.”
